TELEX SERVICE

Usage of Telex Service is recorded, in terms of "pulses," on a metering device located in the Telegraph Company's Telex Service exchange and connected to the calling Telex Subscriber's individual channel facility. The meter registers a variable number of pulses per minute of chargeable time depending upon the rate areas of the Telex Service exchanges of the calling and called stations.

No minimum usage charge applies. Only the actual time consumed on each call is charged for. If a call is terminated within a fraction of a minute, or extends beyond one or more full minutes, a proportional charge is made for the fractional part of a minute. The calling subscriber's meter operates only when a connection to another subscriber has been established and for as long as continued connection is maintained.

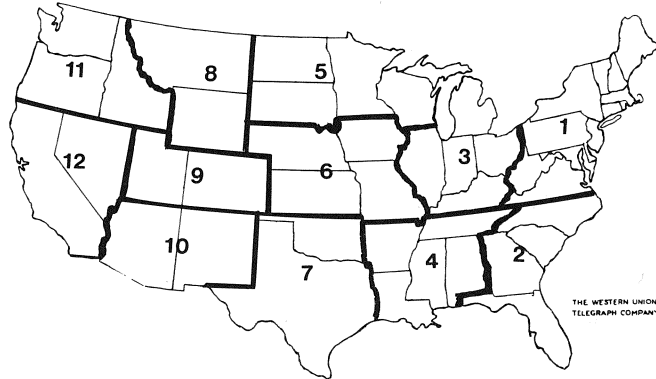

A charge of 2½¢ per Telex pulse applies on the first 5,500 pulses, and a charge of 1.8¢ per Telex pulse applies for all pulses in excess of 5,500 recorded during any monthly billing period.

On the inside and back pages are listed the rate areas by states and the applicable tolls per minute for calls to subscribers connected to Telex exchanges in those states along with examples of charges per minute for calls to Canada and Mexico.
